

Suggest additional content: Further elaboration on how supervision in Taiwan's disability services differs from other fields would provide more context and depth to the study. Analyzing whether this type of supervision contributes to higher retention rates among social workers could offer valuable insights.