

It highlights the importance of peer collaboration in an asynchronous learning environment.

Excellent work – I did notice some inconsistency in numerical formatting throughout the paper (ex: ten percent or 10%). One style of formatting the numbers may improve the overall clarity and consistency of the paper.

Also, one sentence has utilization twice in it- as utilization and utilizing, which may need adjusting.

The only suggestion I have is to review the numerical formatting of the article for consistency.

References appear to be recent and sufficient.

The authors did not disclose any competing interests.

The article appears to be written by humans.