Among the public sector, the attempt to introduce generative AI specifically for the GDI Index field is a novel approach. Because the AI learns the unique characteristics of GDI documents, it could contribute to technological advancements.

This paper is structured in the following order: Introduction, Previous Research, Research Design, Research Analysis, and Conclusion, with a general table of contents. The Introduction and Previous Research sections provide a thorough explanation of the background and motivation for this study, as well as relevant prior research. However, the Research Design and Research Analysis sections lack an explanation of the research methodology and analysis results utilizing generative AI, failing to fully demonstrate the uniqueness and purpose of this study. The paper presents a general conclusion.
