

The Revised Article 155 effectively addresses nearly all major concerns raised in my assessment. It transforms the work from a practitioner reflection into a scholarly, theoretically grounded, politically contextualized academic article, with improved structure, clarity, and depth. The only suggestion I would provide is that the author needs to provide a proper citation of Kolb's experiential learning model. Also, the section on "Simulation-Based Learning in Higher Education" could benefit more from additional literature support beyond Kolb.