The manuscript is of significant importance to the social work field, particularly regarding multiple substances within the Latinx community and the sociocultural factors that shape social welfare policy. However, it would benefit from revisions to the body of the paper, ensuring that each paragraph is supported by relevant literature. No paragraph should be left without references. The author must keep in mind that published work is permanent.

The abstract requires some minor editing to enhance its sentence structure.

The various sections of the document are generally satisfactory; however, they require minor revisions to improve the sentence structure. Additionally, it would be beneficial to ground each paragraph in current literature by incorporating references at the beginning, in the middle, and at the conclusion of each paragraph.

The author must incorporate the references from the reference page within the body of the document. It is essential that each paragraph contains a substantial number of citations, as this article is intended for publication in a peer-reviewed journal.
