

Review comment-2

The manuscript addresses major challenges facing the social work profession and the systemic issues that continue to obstruct the most effective interventions for vulnerable service users. It is informative and it offers elements that would require transformative steps. References are sufficient and most recent references.

The manuscript is timely. Persons involved in social work curriculum development should be encouraged by this information.