

Review comment-2

The purpose of an abstract is to provide a concise summary of the manuscript. This section should typically consist of six to seven sentences, or approximately 150–200 words. The content currently presented in this manuscript is overly detailed for an abstract and should be condensed to align with standard expectations.

Additional discussion is needed to examine the impact of ecological theory and trauma-informed care. Specifically, how do these frameworks directly influence youth in care? In what ways do they shape outcomes and experiences? How can they be applied to effectively address and mitigate the effects of trauma among this population?

Numerous references throughout this manuscript are outdated and do not have secondary updated references to support.

The discussion needed more depth and would benefit from stronger integration of evidence and scholarly support to substantiate the topic.
